Cabinet Has Plan

Heat Put on CPR To Settle Strike

St. Laurent, Crump Meet in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent conferred Thursday night with CPR president N. R. Crump amid reports the government is putting heat on the railroad to accept a cabinet plan for settling its dispute with firemen.

"I haven't yet got anything that both parties have accepted," Mr. St. Laurent said after emerging from the meeting.

"I'm taking away some things too" was Mr. Crump's only comment.

During the day, the prime minister also talked with union chiefs, and so did Labor Minister Gregg.

Mr. Crump said there might be further meetings today but he did not expect there would be major developments until afternoon.

PLANS FURTHER TALKS

Mr. St. Laurent said he is "certainly" planning further communications.

Meanwhile, W. E. Gamble of Montreal, Canadian head of the striking firemen's union, said the union is standing by its position.

He said the government proposition is acceptable to the union and added:

"I understand they're trying to persuade the CPR but are having a little difficulty."

DEAN ACHESON

Acheson Hits 'Vague' Policy

WASHINGTON (UP)—Former secretary of state Dean Acheson said yesterday the surprise British-French-Israeli attack on Egypt never would have happened if he had still been in office.

Acheson termed President Eisenhower's new Middle East policy "vague, uncertain, inadequate" and "far too hazardous."

Acheson testified before the House foreign affairs committee shortly before Mr. Eisenhower issued a new appeal in his State of the Union message for his proposed Middle East resolution (see story on page 5).

Asked what he would have done if he had been secretary of state when the U.S.'s two NATO partners joined Israel in the attack on Egypt, Acheson said:

"I would never have allowed it to happen in the first place.

"If you reach the point when your best friends aren't telling you what they are doing," he said, "something's seriously wrong with the works."

Eisenhower's declaration after the attack that the United States could not have one set of rules for its enemies and another for its friends was "folly," Acheson said. "Of course you have different rules for your friends. You simply couldn't function in international relations if you didn't."

HALT SALVAGE

Acheson suggested halting clearing operations of the Suez Canal until Egypt agrees to "a fair management and control" reimbursement by the U.S. of West European users of Mideast oil for the added dollar expense of hauling oil around Africa; construction of an oil pipeline under United Nations control; warning Israel and the Arab states to stop border fighting or suffer U.S. punishment, including U.S. force, and a "great and well-conceived economic aid program in which the nations of West Europe would join the United States in helping underdeveloped nations all over, not only the Middle East."

Queen Going To U.S.?

LONDON, Friday (AP)—The Daily Mirror says President Eisenhower will soon invite the Queen to America for a state visit in October.

The newspaper says the occasion for the visit will be in celebration of the 350th anniversary of the founding of the first British colony in North America — Jamestown, Va.

"Discussions between the White House and Buckingham Palace on the visit have been taking place for some weeks," The Mirror says.

HAROLD MACMILLAN

New Prime Minister

'Bookie Mac Was a Sight'

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Aristocratic Harold Macmillan became prime minister with dandruff on his collar and ashes on his suit. His necktie was ajar.

The man who in a recent year was voted Britain's "best-dressed man" had on a morning suit, and it was slightly rumpled, when he called Thursday on the Queen at Buckingham Palace.

His appearance would have shocked a gentleman's gentleman—but it went down well with the people.

"Look at Ol' Mac'" commented a Downing Street policeman behind a discreet hand "don't 'e look a sight?"

"It's Mac, the bookie," said an onlooker as Macmillan's car rolled up to Buckingham Palace. This was an allusion to his plan, when chancellor of the exchequer, to sell savings bonds with a chance for a lottery prize.

The well-bred, rich 61-year-old Macmillan rode away from the palace in a small automobile. He had a chauffeur at the wheel but the hatless prime minister sat in the front seat beside the driver, a sharp departure from ministerial protocol.

The car could have used a washing.

Beautiful Brain

A romantic, loving the past, the new prime minister has taken on a tremendous and complicated job smack in the hydrogen age. He has been described as a man with a beautiful brain but like a grandfather clock where you can see the wheels go around.

His early education was supervised by his Scots father who insisted on hours of Bible reading. His American mother taught him his first words of French. He has never lost his love for France.

He's the sort of man who gets on well with the gardener, the chauffeur and the village shopkeeper near his country home.

LONDON (Reuters)—Speculation on the possibility of an early general election continues here Thursday night despite the assertion of Harold Macmillan, Britain's new prime minister, that no contest is in prospect.

In a surprise move, the Queen summoned the 62-year-old Chancellor of the Exchequer to Buckingham Palace. The meeting took place in the same first-floor room where Sir Anthony Eden relinquished the premiership Wednesday.

Macmillan favors firm policies in the Middle East. He gets along well with President Eisenhower and state secretary Dulles and is expected to move quickly to restore Anglo-American friendship.

The Queen chose Macmillan after consultations with Sir Winston Churchill and the Marquess of Salisbury, two of the Conservative party's most respected elder statesmen. This recalled the 1923 precedent when her grandfather, King George V, sought advice before passing over Lord Curzon in favor of the second choice, Stanley Baldwin.

In Paris, French official circles welcomed the appointment of Macmillan, regarded as a strong supporter of the Anglo-French intervention in Egypt.

Fun-Loving 'Polar Bears' Brave Gorge

An impromptu "polar bear club" party was staged in the Gorge early today by some high-spirited young people.

Motorist Les Moutray, 515 Cook, reported that when he was driving by Gorge and Tillicum shortly after 12.30 a.m. he saw a woman in a dripping black bathing suit and a man in trunks. "There were obviously more in the party because the two were waving and hollering at somebody down below at the water and at motorists passing by," he chuckled.

Trade Picture Glum

OTTAWA (CP)—A record $1,225,200,000 deficit was set in the first 11 months of 1956 in Canadian trade with the United States.

The bureau of statistics reported Thursday that the deficit — excess of imports over exports — was the second consecutive in history to exceed the $1,000,000,000 mark. The deficit climbed above the figure for the first time during the first 10 months of last year when it stood at $1,097,100,000 in October.

Woman Driver Asleep

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP)—A sleep-walking woman turned sleep-driver before dawn Thursday and woke up 23 miles from home.

Mrs. Albert Wollner of Berkeley told police she found herself on the highway in her husband's car.

She said she apparently got up in her sleep, dressed, put the family's two dogs into her husband's 1940 car and drove south through populous Oakland to Hayward without benefit of headlights. They weren't working.

"When I'm asleep," Mrs. Wollner told Deputy Sheriff Ernest E. Terry, "I'm very much alert and can do things I can't do when I'm awake."

'Take-Home' Boost And Shorter Week

(Compiled from CP and BUP Dispatches)

OTTAWA—Sweeping changes forecast for the next 20 years will see Canada in 1980 more prosperous, more densely populated and in far greater control of her natural resources—provided no global nuclear war interferes.

These are the broad outlines of the massive 60,000-word report of the Gordon economic commission made public by the government yesterday.

The report, studded with optimistic forecasts, says that despite inflation and rising taxes, Canadian wage-earners will enjoy 67 per cent more spending money by 1980 than they do now—for six hours less work each week.

The nation's population in 1980 will be about 26,650,000. A plan to distribute the population of the Maritimes' "distressed areas" to other provinces will help "spread" the people more evenly.

Not all of the report makes good reading. The motorist is singled out to be hit harder. Car licences will cost more; taxes will be heavier.

Most far-reaching aspects of the report concern regulation of exports of oil, gas and hydro power by the establishment of a suggested national emergency authority. Federal regulation of exports of mineral ores and semi-processed metals is suggested.

Reduction of foreign control of Canadian industry and steps to prevent chartered banks and insurance companies falling into foreign hands is recommended.

WALTER L. GORDON

Tipped for a cabinet appointment, and eventually Trade Minister Howe's job, is 50-year-old Toronto accountant Walter Gordon, chief architect of the economic report that bears his name.

Vital B.C. Interest

Of vital interest to B.C. is the suggestion that hydro-electric exports to the U.S. from projects on the Columbia and Fraser Rivers be increased on an economic basis. This would be a reversal of the current stand taken by the federal government on this issue.

While the overall industrial picture of the future is bright, the agricultural outlook is gloomy. The report forecasts a decline in the importance of farming to Canada's over-all production. It will, the report says, be down to 6 per cent of the total in 1980 from 13 per cent in 1955.

This speculation is in line with the forecast that metropolitan areas will increase in size at the expense of country districts.

Coal production will also decline over the years, and fewer will be employed in the fishing industry, although those that remain will increase their earnings by some 60 per cent.

As agriculture dwindles in importance, the giant forestry industry will almost double production in the next 20 years, the report estimates.

The commission says total cut of wood will increase by some 60 per cent by 1980 but it warns against wastage of forest products. "The future (of the industry) rests on its ability to maintain its competitive position in world markets. This means . . . constant concern about competitive costs," the report says.

To achieve this the report goes on, "improvement in forest management practices is essential."

University Upsurge

Other highlights:

1. Universities should be raised to standards among the highest in the world, and professors should have very substantial salary increases.

2. Average working hours per week in agriculture are expected to drop from 55.3 to 43.75 and in business, from 41.3 to 34.3 in 1980.

3. The Gross National Product may increase from $36,800,000,000 in 1955 to about $76,000,000,000.

4. While the output of all sectors of the economy may increase, agricultural output may decline from about 13 per cent of the total to six per cent.

5. The proportion of persons living in metropolitan areas may rise to 80 per cent, compared with 62 per cent in 1955.

6. It is expected that the share of total exports going to the United States and total imports from the U.S. will continue to increase.

7. The number of people employed in the fishing industry will continue to decline and the fishing population will tend to be concentrated in fewer centres.

8. Many municipalities should be able to increase their long-term borrowing to finance needed capital expenditures.

9. All Canadians should try to help to reduce the differential between living standards in the Atlantic regions and other parts of Canada.

10. A national energy authority should be established which would advise the government on long-term energy requirements and how best to meet them.

11. It would be unwise to favor the oil and gas industry through tax concessions merely because this is being done in the United States.

12. A short solution to the railway problems, associated with competition against road haulers, may involve government subsidies in lieu of an increase in grain rates.

13. Foreign capital is welcome but there should be more foreign investment in Canadian bonds and mortgages. Foreign companies should whenever possible employ Canadians in senior positions and sell 20 to 25 per cent to their equity stock to this country.

Outburst

Juries 'Getting Fed Up'

VANCOUVER (CP)—An angry foreman said Thursday coroners' juries are wasting their time hearing evidence into gassing deaths.

Arthur Freeman told Coroner Dr. Julius Grimson:

"It's time something was done. Juries are getting sick and tired of hearing that the B.C. Electric is not responsible, the city is not responsible and the gas works people are not responsible."

The foreman spoke at the inquest into the deaths by natural gas of Mrs. Clara Knudson, Mrs. Emily Poitras and Maurice Bruce.

Mrs. Knudson's husband asked the coroner whether safety devices are fitted to gas jets in Vancouver.

A provincial gas inspector said regulations require safety equipment on some appliances.

"Why aren't they there?" Mr. Knudson asked.

Federal Contribution Fine But Car Tax a Pipe Dream

Mayor Percy Scurrah and City Comptroller Dennis Young were both enthusiastic last night about the Gordon Commission recommendation that senior governments should pay taxes on their property in municipalities.

But no enthusiasm greeted the commission's suggestion that municipalities should increase their revenue by taxing automobiles.

Victoria has been fighting for a long time, the mayor said, for full tax payments from the senior governments, and the Throne Speech read to Parliament this week indicated that the federal government had at last recognized that it should pay grants in lieu of full taxes on its properties receiving municipal services.

But "it would be a wonderful thing" if the provincial government would accept the same principle. "It would solve our financial problems."

A city tax on cars, Mr. Young said, "sounds perhaps desirable as a revenue producer to offset the cost of road maintenance."

But, he added, he wondered how feasible it would be to apply.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

ONCE in a while Daddy meets some old friends in town and stays out far too late, talking. He wakes up next day feeling cheerful and ready to keep on talking, but he soon learns that he is delivering a monologue.

Mummy could be receiving his message, but she isn't sending. Only the swish and thump of the washing machine tells Daddy that she is at home.

Daddy [illegible] attempts to start a long-distance conversation. Mummy replies with a [illegible] and pointed silence.

Then Daddy becomes aware of two small brown eyes focused upon him from a distance of eight inches, and a small face tilted up with a look of mingled curiosity and approval. This is son Michael, aged 20 months. He never sends Daddy to the doghouse. Michael has never heard of that legendary place of confinement. Anything Daddy does is all right with him.

Just as Michael is climbing on the bed and preparing to come down with both feet on Daddy's stomach—one of his affectionate little gestures—Daddy gets an idea. Why not use the boy as a goodwill ambassador, to sweeten up Mummy?

"Michael, go and get pretty Mummy," he says. "Bring her here, so I can talk to her."

Away go the little feet, and the voice can be dimly heard in the next room, burbling something that might be the message—or on the other hand (Daddy reflects to himself) it could be a fragment of the tobacco auctioneer's chant, played backwards.

But mothers understand moppet-language. Mummy's voice can be indistinctly heard through the wall, saying "Here you are," or something like that.

* * *

Then Michael ambles back into Daddy's doghouse. Instead of bringing Mummy with him, however, he is clutching a bright new penny.

"Pretty money," he says, and hands the coin to his father.

The request has become blurred in transit. The boy's confusion is easy to understand, Daddy says to himself, because cash is one thing that mummies often ask for.

However, the boy has supplied his father with a talking-point.

"Sorry to see the boy has learned that money exists," Daddy says.

"It's sad," the boy's mother says. "But how could he help finding out in this house? The subject comes up so often."

From there, the small boy's mother and father went on to make an inventory of the boy's words: Hi, see, pretty, bye, buss-ie (bus) and doct-y (doctor); talk about his delight at the knitted woollen dog that a kind lady gave him (he called it Sachie, which is also the name of the live dog); and the way he had awakened at midnight and called "I want Mummy, please-ie."

They were on speaking terms again. The boy had helped liberate his father from the doghouse. He was already starting to earn his board and lodging.

Bedding Plants Growing Well

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

The spring bedding plants which were raised last summer and planted out last fall—wallflowers, polyanthus, forget-me-nots and the like—are all making good growth through the winter as a result of those mild spells we had in December. Growth has never slowed down and the plants are well ahead of schedule, but there are a few attentions due about now to ensure a really colorful spring display.

Wallflowers in particular are very susceptible to a mildew-like fungus infection called White Rust, always more prevalent in a mild winter when their growth is too soft and succulent. This trouble is most difficult to cope with once it gets a good foothold in your plants, and the smart thing is to take preventive measures by dusting the foliage periodically with a mixture of two parts sulphur to one part hydrated lime.

TOP HEAVY

When wallflowers become too big and top heavy through the winter, their swaying in the wind causes a tapered hole to form in the soil around the stem. This depression fills up with water during the winter rains, rotting the stems at soil level and inducing die-back of the roots. Watch out for these cavities and keep the soil mounded up around the plants.

From now until early March wallflowers should be fed every two weeks with straight superphosphate, applying about half a cupful per square yard and scratching it into the surface soil. The purpose of this is to encourage healthy root action and hard firm topgrowth capable of standing up under hard weather.

With the little double daisies, the main danger to guard against is soil splashing into the growing point during heavy rains. This tends to rot the centre of the plant, resulting in a "blind" or flowerless plant. You can't keep the rain off your daisies, but at least you can keep it from splashing any mud into the rosettes of foliage by spreading an inch-thick layer of peat moss over the soil around each plant, working it well under the spread of the lower leaves.

Keep an eye out for white blotches of mildew on the stems and foliage of your forget-me-nots. This trouble, like the White Rust disease of wallflowers, is always worse during mild spells, and there is quite a bit of it around now. The treatment for this disfiguring infection is a light dusting with sulphur. Keep up the strength and vigor of the plant by stirring a little soot into the soil every two weeks right through to the end of the flowering period.

GREATEST ENEMY

The greatest enemy of the polyanthus primrose is the slug. Examine the leaves frequently for signs of nibbling around the edges and put down slug pellets to poison the culprits. Tuck these in under the spread of the lower leaves as they last longer when given a bit of protection from the rain.

Like the forget-me-nots, the polyanthus enjoys dressings of old weathered soot given every two weeks, applying at the rate of one heaping tablespoonful per plant. As the outer leaves become yellow with age they should be snipped off close.

Bank Thief Confesses

Wilson Denies Gun Possession

By ERITH M. SMITH

Leonard Wilson of Duncan pleaded guilty in a crowded city police courtroom yesterday to robbing the Royal Bank of Canada in Victoria Monday.

Every available seat in the courtroom and all [illegible] room was filled when the two stood to hear the charge read.

The two made a smart appearance as they entered the prisoner's box. The clean-shaven Wilson wore a light suit and sport shirt while auburn-haired Miss Jessiman wore a grey topcoat over a skirt and blouse.

The charge against them read that "You, and each of you, while armed with an offensive weapon or imitation thereof, to wit a pistol, did steal $1,000 from the Royal Bank of Canada, 1517 Douglas."

Magistrate Henry C. Hall advised the two of [illegible] of trial by a magistrate, [illegible] a judge, or to [illegible] court [illegible] of judge and jury.

In a strong, clear voice Wilson elected "By you, your honor."

Miss Jessiman's voice was barely audible as she made the same election.

After a second reading of the charge, Magistrate Hall asked Wilson how he pleaded, and again his voice was clear as he said "Guilty."

Before the question could be put to Miss Jessiman, Prosecutor Alan Bigelow rose and told the court:

"Since this charge was first laid information has come to me to the effect that Miss Jessiman had no part in this offence. Therefore I would like to withdraw the charge."

This was done by the magistrate and Miss Jessiman left the box and the courtroom.

Circumstances of the holdup were outlined by Det. Alex Briggs who with Det. Gus Mount brought the two back from Seattle.

HAND THEM OVER

Wilson, said Det. Briggs, [illegible] [illegible] Monday, entered the Royal Bank. He walked to a [illegible] and wrote on the back of a deposit slip: "I have a gun. [illegible] large bills [illegible] [illegible] shoot."

The "imitation" weapon, the detective told Mr. Bigelow, was in fact Wilson's hand inside his [illegible] gun was ever found in his possession.

Magistrate Hall asked Wilson if he had anything to say.

[illegible] honor, and I'm sorry I did it, but I never had a gun.

"I would like to make it up to the bank. It was just something I did on the spur of the moment. I didn't plan it."

Det. Briggs told court that $856.[illegible] had been recovered from the couple in Seattle and Magistrate Hall made an order for restitution to the bank.

[illegible] remanded to Jan. [illegible] for a pre-sentence report. Wilson was told he [illegible] witnesses to appear at that time.

Question of a reward in connection with this week's speedy capture and return to Victoria of Leonard Wilson, who has admitted robbing the Royal Bank of Canada here, rests with the Canadian Bankers' Association.

A fund is maintained by that association to reward persons responsible for capture of robbers, or who give information leading to their capture.

The amount is [illegible] but has gone as high as $1,000.

Police officers acting in line of duty and bank employees are not eligible for these rewards.

It has been suggested that J. Reid Hannan, travel agent for TCA, whose suspicions were aroused by Wilson Monday at Patricia Bay Airport might be eligible for some sort of reward.

Friends of Miss Jessiman in Duncan are certain that when the attractive auburn-haired girl left the up-Island city Sunday with Wilson, marriage to him was her sole aim.

Until about a year ago Miss Jessiman was a highly regarded student at Cowichan High School. At that time she left school to work for the B.C. Telephone Co. [illegible] at a boarding house where [illegible] for a younger sister.

The girl's parents live in the interior of the province, but Miss Jessiman was well known in Duncan as a United Church member and former member of the CGIT who gave a good deal of time in youth work.

Reason for the Seattle wedding plan was probably the necessity for the girl, being just 18, to obtain her parents' consent in this country.

Wilson, who has been working for the Commonwealth Construction Co. on the Malahat, has been in Duncan district since last July.

Sooke Will Go Right to Top

SOOKE—Trustees of Sooke School District 62 will go directly to Education Minister Leslie Peterson to ask support for their proposed school building referendum.

The department has rejected the plan twice on [illegible] figures do not justify the classroom space requested.

Board chairman [illegible] Williams, re-elected at a meeting this week, said the government's main objection was the high number of [illegible] rooms [illegible].

At Belmont H[illegible] board w[illegible] rooms and [illegible] department [illegible] sufficient at M[illegible] High School [illegible] for two rooms and the department will not approve any additions.

The board has been working on the referendum for 18 months and Mr. Williams feels further cuts would render the plan worthless.

Swing shifts threaten Langford and Colwood schools unless classrooms are added before December. [illegible] are overcrowded at present and can [illegible].

[illegible] Langford is [illegible] 11 rooms. The eleventh [illegible] was opened in November one day after the [illegible] on the school was [illegible].

At Colwood 200 children are squeezed into five rooms and [illegible] was put in [illegible].

Only other solutions besides swing shifts would be to transport Langford and Colwood students to Happy Valley school, which is not too crowded, or to rent outside halls for classrooms.

The board voted to stay with its present salary offer to teachers which includes pay increase and [illegible]. A [illegible] per cent increase for non-teaching employees was approved earlier.

These three deer and one other left the safety of Navy Island in the Niagara River to swim to the mainland. Hydro workers opened control gates to help them ashore, but after reaching the shore they turned back, frightened by people anxious to help them. They were swept over the brink of the falls and killed.—(CPC)

Mooney's Full Support

Faustman Plan Backed

Ald. M. H. Mooney, chairman of the public works committee which has been asked by the mayor for quick action on the city's traffic problems, said yesterday he "will go along with the Faustman report completely."

The report prepared by traffic engineering consultant D. Jackson Faustman of Sacramento calls for a solution to the Fountain Circle congestion prob[illegible] Douglas and Government as far south, perhaps, as Herald.

No one, Ald. Mooney said, had brought forward another Fountain Circle plan that would provide as satisfactory a solution to the problem.

At a Rotary Club luncheon Mayor Percy Scurrah took the opposite tack.

"In looking at the problem," he said, "I am not yet personally convinced that the time has arrived when we should go for that."

The mayor said he was convinced there was a solution perhaps not quite as ideal as Mr. Faustman's but that would be satisfactory for the next five or 10 years.

American authorities agreed that the only time when one-way streets were justified was when conditions became intolerable he said, and the Victoria situation was not intolerable yet.

AIMS OUTLINED

He said he wanted to see a schedule of strict maintenance for roads, drains and sewers with a minimum of expansion.

"We are now engaged in road, sewer and drain depreciation replacement programs. Residents will have to understand that in time all neighborhoods will benefit from it."

Ald. Mooney said that he favored a pay-as-you-go policy, further cutting of the per capita debt, quick reconstruction of the new Point Ellice bridge, and more sales of city-owned property.

He also said he favored using the funds from the sale of properties for capital expansion: new fire hall, city hall, garbage disposal system, and repair and storage yards; logging of special sections of Thetis Lake Park with the revenue used for park development; investigation [illegible] a boulevard cleanup drive, and institution of a new bicycle licensing system under which the licences would be permanent.

Now stationed in Calgary with his battalion, Cpl. Shawcross will serve with the military component, Canadian delegation to the International Supervisory Commission in Indo-China.

Canada Stands to Lose

SINCE the Liberal administration at Ottawa, under Hon. C. D. Howe's precipitate urging, rushed Parliament into the granting of an exclusive franchise to the Trans Canada Pipe Lines to build a natural gas pipeline across the country and take off a first export tap for the American market there have been many to question the wisdom of that action. Regardless of the unprecedented methods used by the government to force the measure through the House of Commons by closure and sheer party weight, inherent objections were taken to the plan itself. It is asserted now, by those in a position to know, that Canadian gas producers may take a beating in the government-sponsored deal; financed with a direct loan of $80,000,000, and a contingent subsidy of $122,000,000 in association with the Province of Ontario.

The assertion has been directly made that Canadian gas producers had been offered and could have received upwards of 20 per cent more in the basic price at the point of production; a consideration amounting to $200,000,000 during proposed initial contracts. That is a very serious matter from the standpoint of Canada's economy, and it most certainly calls for some explanation from the government and Mr. Howe as to the facts as they now stand. Canadian producers are not likely to rest easy or long in any situation implying loss.

From the day the pipeline bill was forced through Parliament neither Mr. Howe nor any other member of the federal cabinet has vouchsafed any satisfactory explanation of the reasons for the administration's sudden plunge into a speculative field in company with a concern which is not under Canadian control. Without question the exclusive franchise has been created. But it has yet to be established that its holder can fulfil all of the conditions contracted. The construction of the actual pipeline is today far short of where it was to have reached before the end of last year. The issue of an import permit into the American market has not been settled, and appears just as disputed as ever in a sphere wherein Canada has no vestige of control whatever. Other conditions precedent in connection with Alberta approval for export of natural gas arise this month.

In view of the fact that this is the government-sponsored scheme underwritten with taxpayers' money, which has been pledged to the extent of the $80,000,000 loan, a full and adequate explanation of the current position of affairs is due by the government not only to Parliament but also the people of this country. The chief issue is the factual one: have the Canadian gas producers been led into an improvident bargain or have they not? Next to that and equally urgent remains the question of what the taxpayers will receive for these strange concessions.

Municipal Code Needs Study

ONE of the most important, if not the most important, pieces of legislation to be presented by the government at the approaching session of the British Columbia Legislature will be the Municipal Act of 1957. This omnibus bill on which the Department of Municipal Affairs, with the assistance of local governments at all levels, has been working for a couple of years will be a consolidation to the tune of some 900 sections of the mass of acts and amendments by which the affairs of cities, districts and villages are regulated. It will be much more than a consolidation, however. The government has made no secret of the fact that the bill will contain many revolutionary changes in the composition, election, terms of office and powers of municipal corporations.

For that reason it is most desirable that the complete contents of the bill should be made public as speedily as constitutional procedure will allow. Members of the legislature who will be required to vote on the bill should have ample time to digest it. So also should municipal authorities in order that they may be able to discuss their new code book intelligently before the municipal affairs committee of the House.

Municipal Affairs Minister Black has quite properly declined a request from Opposition Leader Strachan to supply the opposition with copies of the bill in advance of the opening of the session. It was a request which should not have been made, for the rules would not permit the minister to accede to it; and in any event Mr. Black has stated that the draft is not likely to be ready until next month.

There is another way, however, by which the government could place the bill in the hands of all members so as to give them ample time for study. That is to introduce it for first reading at the earliest possible date after the House meets but postpone until towards the end debate on the principles of the bill and clause-by-clause discussion in committee. That way all members should have a month or more to examine the bill. Because of its importance to every municipal taxpayer in the province, however, this should not be one of those measures customarily rammed through in the final hours of the session, and no unreasonable curbs should be placed on debate.

The Others Should Help

THE idea that an addition should be built to the Memorial Arena as a centennial project is not too valid. Ideas for centennial undertakings are many and varied and as needed community projects often commendable enough. There seems to be a tendency, however, to seize on B.C.'s centenary celebrations as an opportunity to get something which otherwise might be difficult to secure. An excellent case has been made out for more ice space to fill the needs of young skaters of the Greater Victoria area, but an arena addition is a run-of-the-mill project which can scarcely be classified as a special centennial memorial. As it happens also the arena is already a dedicated memorial to the community's war dead, and this significance would be diluted by attaching to it another memorial aspect merely because of financial convenience.

Expansion of the present arena properly belongs as a business venture by the arena commission in conjunction with the City Hall. This is the course which would be taken were there no hundredth birthday coming up for the province. If as has been shown there is imperative need for an addition the project should stand on its own merits, it will be warranted by the facts.

In this connection Alderman Edgelow's suggestion that the addition should be built by the joint effort of all four municipalities is the fair and reasonable one. The City footed the bill for the present structure, which serves the youth and adults of all of the Greater Victoria area. It should not be called upon to extend the facilities purely at its own expense. There is not too much co-operation with the City by the councils of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt when it comes to any project that involves expenditures, but here surely is one that they could not fairly reject. Victoria ratepayers have borne the burden of the arena, and are still bearing the capital costs, and they should not be expected to pay alone once more for an amenity which would be enjoyed equally by all citizens of the combined district.

Interpreting the News

Premier Mollet Durable

By BERNARD KAPLAN
North American Newspaper Alliance

PARIS—Premier Guy Mollet has presented his cabinet colleagues with the kind of New Year's gift politicians appreciate most: the news that they can look forward to several more months in power. He has also served notice that he means to continue making France's presence felt in world affairs.

The little Socialist ex-schoolteacher with the brush moustache, who already has presided over 11 of the most tempestuous months in recent French history, has set his sights on being premier longer than any of his 18 post-war predecessors. His chances look good.

Despite Suez, critical economic problems looming ahead and the continuing Algerian headache, no serious move to unseat Mollet's minority government of Socialists and Radicals (moderates) has arisen in the Chamber of Deputies. While the Suez affair badly rocked the British government and stirred uproar in the House of Commons all has remained calm in France, at least on the surface.

Mollet has never looked better or acted with greater assurance. This surprising state of affairs has led puzzled critics of France's notorious system of coalition cabinets and splinter parties to take another look at it. They have begun to wonder whether it is as unstable in all circumstances, as it has been said to be.

What criticism Mollet has suffered has come from the left wing of his own Socialist Party and the followers of his one-time collaborator and former premier Mendes-France, not from the right. This is probably the secret of his surprising ability to remain in power though he actually controls fewer than one-third of the French parliament.

He has won the support of the right by conducting the most vigorous defence of French national interests of any leader since General de Gaulle. A Socialist who condemned France's colonial policies for years before he became premier, he has amazed some and stunned others by becoming a champion of traditional French interests in North Africa and the Middle East.

At the same time, he has managed to hold onto his leftist supporters, except the Communists, whom he has not tried to win, by energetically pushing through many of the social reforms they had clamored for. Critics have charged him with unbridled opportunism for insisting on expensive new social security and pension laws when the shaky French economy was already burdened to the bursting point to support the Algerian fighting. However, Mollet counters that these were solemn election promises which he was bound to honor.

I WAS [illegible] by a picture of the [illegible] man the other day and [illegible] for half had looking at you make the necessary allowances. After all he never heard of soap, [illegible] a razor, or Emily Post. Of course no one ever took his picture either so there is considerable guesswork about his looks but frankly [illegible] the picture is anywhere near the [illegible] we the male sex haven't improved a great deal. Sometimes one of us is flattered by being compared to a Greek god but in general and in bathing trunks, alas, we are not far removed from Neanderthal himself. Don't you think it signifies something that the great masters of painting eschewed in the main the male form?

[illegible] was on [illegible] bent [illegible] to promote interest in the forthcoming [illegible] symphony orchestra performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, Graham Steed took a moment to impress me with the virtue of religious music. He was speaking to a layman but not to the unconverted. A coronation, for instance, or a dedication service would be bereft of atmosphere and its significance diluted were it not accompanied by the majesty of appropriate musical sound. Church chimes are not [illegible] collection-plate come-ons. You know they are an integral part of religious observance.

Comparing [illegible] abilities with those of a machine a research doctor says that the human brain does very well [illegible] that really shouldn't be surprising. The world we live in [illegible] out of it I mean, due to the mental processes of man. You can argue about the wisdom of man but not deny that he is a very busy fellow. The human brain falls behind the electronic computer, however, the doctor points out, because it is liable to boredom and distraction. Which mechanically speaking may be sadly true even if this weakness adds diversity and spice to the world. One special credit shouldn't be overlooked however. It was the human brain which invented the machine and there is room for legitimate doubt that its procedure will ever be reversed.

The New York theatre critic who complained that a handsome woman must not be treated shabbily on the stage—he was objecting to the bedraggled appearance her role forced on Fay Emerson—was surely having a night off. In moviedom for example [illegible] the Hollywood penchant for not garbing its actresses to suit their parts [illegible] to destroy the illusion a film should create. Drama makes [illegible] concession to looks at all. When a famous star falls into a tank of water or suchlike she should emerge sopping wet and not, as by some weird alchemy she so often does, without a single curl of her hair disturbed. Beauty on the stage does no harm to a play but only so long as it fits the scene. Seems [illegible] the important thing.

On a TV program the other night there came into focus the large, warming figure of Ethel Waters, for all the world like a version of the traditional 'mammy.' She has been having lean years lately, however, and when the MC asked how she was bearing up she replied, in substance: "It is easy to be happy when you are successful; it takes courage to be bright in bad times. Perhaps the good Lord will let me be happy again sometime." Her philosophy is not new, is never old, and readers of "His Eye Is On the Sparrow" will hope she has a favorable tide of fortune coming in soon.

Commonwealth Commentary

British Family Coming of Age

By ORMONDE GODFREY from London

THE [illegible] great changes in the [illegible] of the colonial territories of the Commonwealth. In some self-government will be realized whilst elsewhere the indigenous populations will be called upon to take part to an increasing extent in the affairs of their homelands. The year 1957 is to record the greatest evolution ever known in the affairs of the widespread junior partners in the British way of life.

Geographers and politicians, schoolchildren and businessmen alike will have new names to learn and old ones to forget as the changes come into being. The Gold Coast is to be known as Ghana, its people as Ghanaians as the country becomes the first of the African territories to attain full independence within the Commonwealth early in the new year. Nigeria is to achieve a similar state soon afterwards.

New proposals for the constitutional structure of Cyprus have just been announced. These have been designed to give the inhabitants of the island a wide measure of self-government. For this is a vitally important strategic centre to all members of the Commonwealth and the strife which has existed, engendered by terrorist groups operating under the cloak of nationalism, has to be ended and the gulf between government and people narrowed.

* * *

From the Federation of Malaya, late in the old year the Queen's chief minister, Tunku Abdul Rahman went to London to discuss with the colonial secretary defence and financial problems associated with the forthcoming independence of his country. From the adjoining territory of Singapore the chief minister, Mr. Lim Yew Hock, also conferred with the colonial secretary on arrangements for the holding in the new year of a full-scale constitutional conference at which the future of Singapore will be settled.

Half-way across the world the islands of the Caribbean are awaiting federation with a federal government, legislature, supreme court and a capital, the location of which has yet to be decided. Key officials—a federal secretary, finance officer, attorney-general and establishment officer—have already been appointed.

In East Africa, in Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda much progress is being made in spreading more widely the responsibility of government amongst the multi-racial groups living there. In Aden the elective principle has been introduced into the legislative council and proposals have been mooted for a wider share in government for the peoples of Mauritius and Zanzibar.

Malta's immediate financial problems have been eased and further progress has been made towards the day when members of parliament from the island can take their seats at the House of Commons. The communist menace to British Guiana has been overcome, so that restrictions placed upon political activities at the time the new constitution was introduced are being lifted.

The outlook for all the colonies is, indeed, bright.

* * *

The political changes which are coming about in the months ahead are based upon the sound economic structures of the territories concerned together with firmly established public services largely staffed by locally recruited and trained personnel.

Most of the territories rely for a large proportion of their national incomes upon the production for overseas sale of primary agricultural produce and raw materials extracted from their lands. World prices for the principal crops and other commodities—cocoa, coffee, tea, sugar, cotton, sisal and tin and other metallic ores—have been sufficiently high and stable for the sustenance of the development schemes which the territories have undertaken. And it has thus been possible to bring about investment conditions increasingly attractive for the financing by outside capital of industrial undertakings producing a large range of consumer and other commodities for sale at home and abroad.

The research programs upon which territorial governments have embarked either singly or in co-operative groups have been calculated to aid both agricultural and industrial development whilst bringing about conditions in which the many constant threats to primary production may be countered.

* * *

Civil service establishments have been expanded to bring about increased educational, medical and other welfare services. The daily administration of the territories is increasingly less in the hands of officers from overseas as more and more local men and women pass through the universities and technical centres of the Commonwealth.

The over-all political outlook is confidently expected to improve in the months to come. The communist threat to both the Federation of Malaya and Singapore has been largely overcome and the actions of Tunku Abdul Rahman and Mr. Lim Yew Hock have plainly notified the Reds that their interference in the internal affairs of those territories will not be tolerated. In other territories the menaces of terrorist organizations grow less. In Kenya, for instance, the Mau Mau gangs are all but defeated. Law and order are catching up with the EOKA bands in Cyprus. Elsewhere political stability seems assured despite rumblings occasionally heard from parties in opposition to the proposals from government benches.

Thus the differences in Malaya, Singapore, Nigeria and the Gold Coast may fade as those territories achieve the unity of self government by free peoples based upon freedom and independence.

In a year's time there will be new faces at the Conference of Commonwealth Prime Ministers. The newcomers will have new contributions to make to the deliberations of Commonwealth statesmen bent upon solving the problems which confront constantly the free association of peoples of a common way of life.

Social Clubs for 'Students'

(From The Sault Ste. Marie Star)

A [illegible] decision by our board of education to charge fees to students who spend six or more years in secondary schools sheds [illegible] light upon the mentality of some Sault youngsters.

According to a recent report there are students, if one can strain the term that far, who spend seven or eight years going to secondary schools without making any attempt to study.

Apparently these youngsters regard school as a sort of club from which they will be expelled if they are foolish enough to pass examinations. As a result the Sault taxpayer has to support them for an indefinite number of years, just fooling around the classroom waiting for the breaks and recesses so as to enjoy a good time with their pals.

To our way of thinking, paying a fee is not enough.

Harking back to the days long ago when we attended school we can think of many good reasons why we studied in class. Most of these were laid on by muscular masters adept in handling the cane. It is a noteworthy fact that history and geography have ever since proved to be among our strongest subjects. We well remember that the master who taught these was six-foot-two and as strong as an ox.

Although masters at high schools are unfortunately not allowed to use the cane there should be sufficient attention between master and parent to render this unnecessary. If fathers would read between the lines of report cards and marks given at exams they should be sufficiently co-operative to use the rod in support of the man tutoring their sons.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

IN EVERY police station in Canada, whether it is the division or precinct of a big city, the branch of the provincials, or the county or municipal police, there is at least one constable who is a good shot with a rifle, as the result of military training or of experience in the bush as a sportsman. A good rifle shot is nothing rare or unusual in Canada.

It seems a great pity therefore, that when a citizen goes beserk and barricades himself in his house or, as a recent case demonstrates, got on the roof of his home armed with a shotgun after murdering his wife, to defy the police a whole company of cops armed with pistols arrived on the scene and fired 30 shots at the poor devil with those ill-gotten weapons the belly gun.

A pistol or revolver is a belly gun. The police carry them for reasons of convenience. Mighty few policemen are expert shots with the tricky little weapon with its four to six inch barrel. On a rough estimate, I would say that there are 200 good rifle shots for one good pistol shot.

Why then do we not have in every police station a good rifle of medium calibre possibly at 25-20 supplied with metal-cased or solid lead bullets, which will do far less injury than the hunting loads of soft-nosed or expanding bullets. And when one of our citizens goes beserk and has to be taken in the expert rifle shot of the division takes the rifle and gets his man with a carefully and normally placed shot on his foot, the tip of his elbow, the edge of his shoulder bone, rendering him instantly helpless and properly to be brought before a court of law, which, after all is the sole function of the police.

In the case mentioned above, 30 shots were fired from pistols in the hands of the police, probably at ranges at which even the experts couldn't have hit a nail keg. And the man was hit in the jaw and neck. He might easily have been killed with a fraction to the left or right, without benefit of the court of law.

Among my casual acquaintances I know 20 men, some of them cops, who could, with a low-power rifle and hard-cased bullets, and a little patience and skill wing a madman so delicately that he would be in the hard and kindly hands of the police before he knew what had happened to him.

I think this is worth thinking about. After all we are Canadians.

With the Classics

Yet here at least an earnest sense
Of human right and weal is shown;
A hate of tyranny intense,
And hearty in its vehemence,
As if my brother's pain and sorrow
were my own.
O Freedom! if to me belong
Not mighty Milton's gift divine,
Nor Marvell's wit and graceful song,
Still with a love as deep and strong
As theirs, I lay, like them, my best gifts in thy shrine.

Only Bosses Benefit

The absurdities which have been substituted for reasoned argument in the present railway strike should [illegible] but I am afraid will not [illegible] arouse considerable public indignation.

First of all we have the outright admission from the International union that the CPR must not be allowed to win because every other railway would follow the same policy. Just what this has to do with the essence of the problem has not been explained and is not likely to be.

Secondly, the CCL and the CCF have offered similar [illegible] of another committee. It is to be allowed [illegible] work on the problem and produce an answer that will not be binding. General incompetence of the last committee is implied and the idea supports a widely held view that a problem need never be faced as long as a committee can be formed. Democracy has a right to expect more responsibility from the political parties and labor bosses than this. What would the CCL and the CCF have said if the CPR had refused to accept the judgment of the board which arbitrated the last dispute before this one? It was unfavorable to the company and the public but was accepted.

Thirdly, we are told by a newspaper headline that the CCL recommendation has been accepted by [illegible] employees of the CPR. Was a vote taken? Was the idea explained by both sides? But in two days or less the various ideas of 75,000 people can be canvassed and sorted out [illegible] a solid affirmation of a red herring the size of a whale.

A fourth absurdity is labor's refusal to recognize the lessons of the last century. High income is based on high output per man hour. Unless a man can turn himself into an animated flywheel he must accept the assistance of labor-saving machinery such as the Diesel locomotive. The employees should give more thought to the fact that only a prosperous company can pay high wages. This time only the union bosses will benefit from a [illegible].

New Use for Bonus

In Sunday's Colonist Mr. William [illegible] suggested that 25 per cent of the baby bonus could be used [illegible] school costs. This is an excellent suggestion and I [illegible] couraged to enlarge on Mr. Mat[illegible]'s proposal.

I suggest that the baby bonus cheques of all children attending either public or private schools shall be endorsed by the parents and given to the children to be deposited [illegible] the children either in school banks or such certified [illegible] as may seem advisable.

One half of the amount of the cheque will be used to defray the operating costs of the school and the other half will be deposited to the credit of the pupil. School banks have been established in a number of schools and the children have gained experience in business and banking through this means.

If a child has a regular allowance for spending money he will learn the value of money, and such an allowance should help to curtail juvenile delinquency. Since all the money would go to the benefit of the children the parents should not object to this plan. The idea could be easily extended to cover student nurses and apprentices in industry.

Let Them Pioneer

I believe I am stating a fact when I say we here in Canada feel the deepest sympathy for the Hungarian people in our midst. We wish to do all we can to help them along the way, I am sure. But it is my considered opinion these unfortunate people should not be placed in our cities, where they are taking and being given every available job and our own people unemployed.

This should not be allowed. Our forefathers pioneered this country. They worked hard and long. Canada is a large country, much of it still not developed. Why not let the Hungarians take hold, pioneer as we did and develop that part of the country which as yet has not felt the blow of an axe and its soil still virgin?

In this way the pride of the Hungarians can be preserved. They would feel they had earned the right to become part of our wonderful Canada.

Christian Nation?

So on behalf of our [illegible] M. Pickersgill turns down the [illegible] country.

Could be that one day Mr. Pickersgill may be facing a tribunal to hear the fateful words [illegible] as ye have done it unto one of the least [illegible].

Outlaw Strikes

I believe there is more to this railway strike than most people [illegible]. Personally, I [illegible] a test case or a [illegible] on the part of labor [illegible] government and the people will [illegible] before making further moves toward their objective.

These actions are very similar to Communist [illegible] or strategy and will have about the same effect if people don't wake up and do something to outlaw strikes, which have become a curse.

Bleating for Money

Two or three years ago I was amazed to see what to my European [illegible] looked a perfectly good useful school being demolished. The argument that it was necessary to tear it down because it was too small left me unconvinced. Later there arose on the site a new one, vast, streamlined, [illegible].

Yesterday [illegible] I passed that same edifice when the students were [illegible] home. Two youths drove out in a good-looking car, simultaneously chewing gum and emitting smoke from their nostrils like the brazen bulls of Jason, as if their lives depended on it. Their evident eagerness to be on their way while they waited for the traffic lights, was not without significance.

Should the school board bleat again in the name of [illegible] word education for yet more money to [illegible] these young men in idleness, I feel that prudence on the part of the taxpayer might prompt an even more decisively negative response.

EVA HINTON.

The Great Killer

I notice a [illegible] from Ottawa captioned "3,100 Deaths on Highways" and further "that was a 10 per cent increase over the [illegible] total of 2,800 who died in 1955."

With modern cars powered up to 280 horsepower, and speeds [illegible] well up to and exceeding 100 miles an hour, what else can we anticipate lies ahead?

With our [illegible] highways, narrow curves and steep grades, British Columbia is the logical place to start a [illegible] safety for all and the first step is to [illegible] speeds. The Ministerial Association of [illegible] the influence and prestige of their respective [illegible] could make this request to the federal government [illegible] needed, too.

No Foreign Control

I [illegible] the statement of M. P. Wrixon [illegible] workers being remitted [illegible]. This is not true.

[illegible] the parent bodies by local [illegible] benefits and [illegible] kept [illegible] banks and invested in [illegible] one cent leaves this country.

[illegible] this I extend him an [illegible] Labor Temple and he can see the [illegible] where the union dues go.

As for the statements concerning Canadian labor being [illegible] from a foreign land this, again, is [illegible].

I am a member of several fraternal lodges that have a [illegible] United States. However, that does not [illegible] that they are controlled by people in a [illegible] labor movement is a free democratic [illegible] working in co-operation with organized labor [illegible] United States for the improvement of the way of life [illegible] people on the North American continent.

Eisenhower Warns Of Twin Menaces

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower [illegible] Americans Thursday to stand "vigilant guard" against inflation at home and [illegible] ace abroad of "armed imperialistic dictatorship."

[illegible] Eisenhower urged business and labor leaders to [illegible] bility to the American people and [illegible] presented [illegible] special groups at the expense of all the people.

While the pursuit of human liberty, welfare and progress "has brought us to an unprecedented peak in our economic prosperity," the president said the danger of [illegible] by the [illegible] sort the existence of a strongly armed imperialistic dictatorship is a continued threat to the security and peace of the free world and "thus to our own." America, he said, cannot stand alone and isolated.

Among other things Eisenhower called for: A law granting permanent entry to Hungarian refugees and approval of [illegible] U.S. participation in the international atomic energy agency.

Make-or-Break Schedule

Cougars' Test Starts With Amerks Tonight

With their arch rivals, Seattle Americans, as opposition, Victoria Cougars tonight start an 11-day assignment which, if carried out successfully, could quite possibly mean a first-place finish in the Western Division of the Western Hockey League.

Between now [illegible] of Monday [illegible] Cougars play New Westminster Royals three times, Vancouver Canucks twice, and the Americans once.

Not only does the schedule present the opportunity [illegible] make up lost ground but the opportunity comes just when the Cougars are looking forward to icing their strongest club for the first time this season. If they make an appreciable gain before then, they may never be stopped.

Unless things go wrong, the Cougars should be at full strength by the end of the month.

Defenceman Nelson Bonach who has been working out [illegible] forward line in practices to help [illegible] condition [illegible] is [illegible] about ready for top speed and centre Gordie Wilson is almost ready to play and centre Ray Powell may be ready by the end of the month.

Wilson, who has been sidelined all season because of a knee operation, may be used as soon as Monday's game against Royals. If not, he will see his first action at Vancouver next Friday. If the big pivot has no [illegible] from [illegible] operation [illegible].

GOOD RECOVERY

The clever Powell, who had his arm broken when hit by Pete Durham's stick, is coming along better than expected and hopes are high that he will be ready for action by the time the Cougars start their final Prairie trip, on Jan. 29.

But the immediate task is to knock off the high-scoring Americans tonight. Americans won the last game between the two clubs but they have found the Cougars a handful of late.

The Seattle club won the first four games against the Cougars but could only get two ties in the next four and now lead 2-2 for the season. After scoring 20 goals against Marcel Pelletier in the first four games, Americans were held to eight in the next four.

Cougars, of course, have to stop the Guyle Fielder-Ray Kinasewich-Val Fonteyne line, but that's not their only problem.

While Seattle's first line has clicked for 1[illegible] goals and set up three or four others in the nine game, the Cougars have had just as much trouble with the Ed [illegible] - George Senick - Alex [illegible] combination, led by Kuzma's seven goals, this line has beaten Marcel Pelletier no less than 11 times.

However, the Americans also have a problem or two. With Doug Anderson scoring seven times, including two hat tricks, the Cougar line of Anderson, Colin Kilburn and Doug Macauley has also clicked for 11 goals. And Bruce Carmichael, who has beaten Emile Francis five times, and Gordie [illegible]sworth have also been effective offensively against Americans.

Wagering on Golfers Allowed at Caliente

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico (AP)—The Caliente race track said Wednesday a federal permit authorizes it to conduct pari-mutuel wagering in three forms on the $15,000 Caliente open golf tournament Jan. 17-20.

Wagering will be on the 72-hole tournament winner, with odds on each professional player adjusted daily; on the individual winner of each 18 holes, and on the performances of individual players as against others in each threesome.

The pari-mutuel wagering will be conducted at the track. The tournament will be at the nearby Tijuana Country Club.

An auction will be conducted at the track's clubhouse the night before the tournament starts, at which professional golfers will be "sold" to highest bidders.

The pool collected will be paid out, less the track's percentage, on the order of top finishers in the tournament.

Stage Proves New Career For Many Ring Graduates

By BILL MAHONEY

NEW YORK (NANA) [illegible] figure [illegible] the chances are [illegible] he's thinking of [illegible] acting.

At least it's called acting what a score or more of prominent pugilists offered the public after they had decided their punch combinations were things of a rosy past.

Among better known fighters turned Thespian are Rocky Graziano and "Two Ton" Tony Galento.

Graziano, a bad boy who made good, turned to the "stage" after getting his comeuppance in 1952 from Sugar Ray Robinson (knockout in three rounds) and Chuck [illegible]

[illegible]

Graziano says he made a million dollars fighting and the same amount acting — in one third the time.

Galento, whose ring record reads something like a bad report card, took shellackings from the Baer brothers, Max and [illegible] in 1940-41 before [illegible] fame.

[illegible]

"I play a good hood," Galento told an interviewer. He is such a "good hood," he got a [illegible] part in "The Best Things in Life Are Free."

However, the Rock and Tony are only following a long line of leather-slingers who found stage lights more soothing than the glaring lamp over a patch of canvas.

The Baer brothers, Maxie Rosenbloom, Walter Cartier and Abe Simon also are among those who still like the lights without the rough treatment.

Sugar Ray Robinson, however, found that even a song and dance man has his worries. Robinson was making a comfortable living as a [illegible] entertainer when he attempted a ring comeback, regained the middleweight and then lost it two weeks ago to Gene Fullmer.

Fuelmen Lose Second Game But Capture Hoop Playoff

Rose Fuel lost a game but won a spot in the Senior "B" Men's Basketball League playoffs at Victoria High School last night. The Fuelmen dropped a 52-50 decision to Farmer Construction in the second game of their two-game total-point elimination series, but the 19-point lead established in the first game was more than enough to give them the series. Total score was 11[illegible]-96.

Playoffs will begin Tuesday night when Drakes play Morrisons at 7:00 and Rose Fuel takes on league champion Dickinson & Dunn at 8:30. Both games are the first in best-of-three semi-final series.

Ron Martin, high scorer for Farmer, picked up 13 points in the game, seven of them on free throws. He also scored the winning basket. Paul Simpson led the Fuelmen with 17 points and Andy Ritch scored 13.

TORONTO (CP) — Uraniums were the feature of Thursday's rising stock market. Trading was wide range in some sections as the trend swung back to the upside.

Consolidated Denison was the leader among uraniums. Denison climbed 1⅝ points to a new high of 18⅛ in mid-afternoon and closed at 18 with a turnover of more than 89,000 shares. Can-Met Explorations, whose property lies adjacent to that of Denison in the rich Blind River field of Northern Ontario, jumped 51 cents to a new high of $3.50.

Steels were the strongest issues among industrial groupings. Algoma featured with a climb of 4⅝ points. It was ahead 5⅛ at one time in the session, closing at 118. Stelco and Dominion Steel added a point.

Other industrial winners: Interprovincial Pipe Lines, International Pete, Imperial Bank, Federal Grain, Eddy Paper and Aluminium.

International Nickel added 2⅝ points among senior base metals but other seniors were generally mixed to fractions lower.

Royalite had a heavy bearing on the western oil index as it climbed 1⅞ points in active trade. Consolidated West Pete jumped 35 cents but turnover was light. Other price changes ranged in 15 cents.

Algoma Pulls Ahead

MONTREAL (CP) — A late firming trend put the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges in irregularly higher territory Thursday as scattered gains and losses ranged over a point in moderate trade.

Algoma gained 3⅝ and Dosco 1⅛ in steels. Aluminium added ⅛ while other base metals eased minor fractions. Refining oils were mixed with McColl up a point and International Petroleum down 1. In pipe lines Trans Mountain lost 2½ while Interprovincial advanced 1½.

Shawinigan advanced 2 in utilities. A strong construction group showed Dominion Bridge up 1⅝ and Foundation 1⅛. Great Lakes and International in papers and Commerce and Royal in banks lost major fractions.

Consolidated Denison jumped 1⅝ points with over 16,000 shares traded in mines. Montgary added 35 cents and New Formaque 7 in juniors. Quebec Chib eased 2.

Taken in Stride

LONDON (Reuters)—Prices on the London stock market were steadier after early uncertainty following Sir Anthony Eden's resignation as prime minister.

Many of the early falls were reduced or eliminated.

The acceptance of the prime ministership by Harold Macmillan had no great effect on the market but gilt-edged stocks took on a steadier appearance toward the close after moving erratically during the session.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain dealings continued on the dull side with commercial interest limited.

However, there was some activity in flax where exporters and U.S. houses were buyers. There were indications of some small overseas sales, light hedging sales were in evidence and prices showed a firm tone.

Oats and barley trading was mostly modest domestic shipping purchases. Prices moved in narrow limits.

New York Turns

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market made its first advance of the week on average Thursday in fair turnover.

Industrial stocks recovered from their backwardness of this week's previous sessions. Oils, sugars and aircrafts made some sizable gains.

Some motors, chemicals and selected issues in other groups also advanced smartly. Airlines and rubbers, however, were mainly on the downside.

Radium Bonanza Claimed

Fantastic figures, which could have a profound effect on the supply and pricing of the uranium markets of the future, are reported by Consolidated Denison.

This large Canadian company with a 5,700-ton plant going into full operation shortly claims its [illegible] estimated to have [illegible] tons of ore, averaging 2.78 pounds per ton. The deposit lies in a field 2⅝ miles long and 1½ miles wide.

The value attached to this ore at present uranium prices would be over $3,000,000,000.

In addition, Consolidated Denison says that its present ore is running above the estimated grade and that costs of milling and mining have been reduced from the estimated $9.29 a ton to $7.50.

In its initial contract with El Dorado Mining and Refining, Consolidated Denison has undertaken to deliver $207,250,000 worth of uranium concentrates by 1963.

This will use up only a small fraction of the estimated reserves of the company, and with costs lower than anticipated it could be that in a subsequent free market Consolidated Denison might have a considerable bulge over its less fortunate competitors.

CONTROLS ARE LEAKY

The chartered banks have done their bit towards grappling with the bogey of inflation but James Muir, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, told his shareholders yesterday that other inflationary actions were taking place of which the banks had no control.

Mr. Muir said that while banks were clamping down on term loans, companies were still able to secure their spending money through public financing.

To make matters worse many companies were now floating capital issues to provide cash balances which they might need later. This, Mr. Muir explained, was a type of panic—a panic to get money now for fear it would not be available later; "an unexpected cousin of the typical inflation."

To meet this and other threats the Bank of Canada might be forced to extend its monetary and credit controls and Mr. Muir added that in the battle "unenlightened selfishness was the most misguided missile the anti-inflationaries had to face."

BANK RATE UP AGAIN

The Bank of Canada rediscount rate crept nearer to the 4 per cent mark yesterday when it rose by .06 per cent to a record 3.96 per cent for the forthcoming week.

The weekly sale of treasury bills gave an average yield of 3.81 per cent.

TV Protest Planned

Saanich Voters' Association will be asked to organize a petition to the CBC protesting interference to channel 5 by channel 6, CHEK-TV.

A group of residents of the area around the local TV station Wednesday night received assurance from Fred Rawlings, association vice-president, that he would ask the association at its next meeting, within two weeks, to set the date for a [illegible] ference problem.

From their number, the residents named P. C. McEwan, 3208 Frechette, as chairman of the Victoria TV Interference Committee and elected E. W. Langston, E. M. Wilkinson and E. A. Crane as other spokesmen.

Mr. McEwan said the petition would support CHEK-TV's announced intention to move its transmitter to Salt Spring Island—a move that is almost certain to end interference with channel 5.

It is intended to help television viewers and it also helps Dave Armstrong (CHEK-TV president)," he said. "If the CBC won't do anything, then we'll have to take other steps."

The station will be invited to send three speakers to the public meeting for a "debate on interference," but the committee declined to hold the meeting in CHEK-TV studios.

"Many of us aren't public speakers," said Mr. McEwan. "We just wouldn't feel at home."

CHEK-TV manager Charles White was to speak in Doncaster PTA last night but was in Vancouver on business.

New Union

Surveyors Want Wage Hike

Some 30 Vancouver [illegible] employees of a Vancouver firm of consulting engineers, the first survey crews to be unionized in British Columbia, have opened negotiations for their initial contract and a wage boost of some 75 cents an hour.

"We are negotiating to bring their hourly rate in line with the tradesmen's rates on the projects where they are employed," said W. L. Gauld, CLC representative in Victoria.

The firm H. A. Simons Ltd. employs crews of instrument men, level men, rod men and chain men on several large up-Island projects.

Mr. Gauld said he expected the newly-formed union, B.C. Technical Engineers Association Local 1-17 (CLC), would soon embrace technical engineers employed by other consulting engineers.

Appraisers Elect Ozard

John Ozard was elected chairman of the Vancouver Island chapter of the Appraisal Institute of Canada at a meeting Wednesday night.

Other officers chosen were Gordon Munroe, vice-president; George Burrell, secretary-treasurer; Philip Jeffery and George Chatterton, executive committee members.

All members of the chapter, which has a membership of assessors, real estate men and Veterans' Land Act appraisers, are taking a five-year course which on successful completion, will qualify them to appraise professionally anywhere in North America.

Hot Words Interrupt Meeting of Council

By R. O. MARRION

An angry clash between Mayor Percy Scurrah and Ald. J. Donald Smith over business tax interrupted a special meeting of city council yesterday.

The meeting was called to discuss trading stamps and wage policy, but argument flared when the mayor suggested that council accept the resignation of Alderman Smith as chairman and member of the special trades-licence committee, and named Ald. Hugh Ramsay to succeed him as a member, with Ald. Austin Curtis as chairman.

Ald. M. H. Mooney precipitated the clash when he expressed disappointment in Alderman Smith. "He should have battled it out and brought it to a head."

"Any idea that I have quit fighting on the part of any alderman is wishful thinking," replied Alderman Smith.

He knew, and council knew, he said, that there was no alternative but to accept his report. The report recommended levying of a business tax and revision of the trades licence schedule.

WORK FINISHED

The work of the committee, he contended, was finished. The only decision left to make was "do you want to put business tax in or don't you?"

He had read an editorial in The Daily Colonist suggesting that council shouldn't be hasty in instituting a business tax.

"Nine years may seem to the Colonist a short time but to the home-owners it's a long, long time," he said. "As far as I'm concerned the time is up."

Hits at Mayor

Then he hit at the mayor, claiming that it was obvious the mayor had "premeditated" getting the subject out of council's hands, because the mayor had set up the new committee to refer it to.

"That's not true!" Mayor Scurrah burst out.

Ald. Smith tried to say more, but the mayor leaped to his feet, and waving a finger at the alderman told him he was just reiterating what he had said before.

"And I want to point out to you that there is no fight," said the mayor. "No member of this council has expressed opposition to revision of the tax. There is no fight. It's just a question of how it is going to be done."

"In 1948 legislation was adopted," began Ald. Smith.

"Now sit down," exclaimed the mayor.

"Your interest is in leaving this money in the hands of bigger business or otherwise you would collect it," asserted Ald. Smith.

The mayor said he wasn't going to listen to such talk.

"Now you sit down!" he told Ald. Smith again, and this time his gavel cracked like a shot.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow had the last word. Ald. Smith, he said, was just seeking political publicity. He complained that The Daily Colonist's report on Ald. Smith's letter of resignation gave the public an entirely incorrect impression.

It gave the public the impression that council was against changing the tax, he said, but that was incorrect.

"Not one in this council spoke against it."

"Now," he said, "we have a committee that will keep politics out of it and we will see action."

Supply Threatened

Talk of a possible increase in the price of milk has 10-year-old Donnie McWhirter, 841 Esquimalt Road, wondering if he and his three brothers and sister will have to cut down on their daily quota of four quarts a day.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

City Pay:

Three More Mills

Pay-increase requests of Victoria's civic staffs total $237,000, City Manager C. C. Wyatt told a special meeting of city council yesterday.

This sum is roughly equivalent to three mills on the tax rate.

With only Ald. J. Donald Smith dissenting, council decided to exclude the public and press from the discussion on wages.

Mr. Wyatt said his submission gave a comprehensive picture of the pay requests. The "inside" staff, he said, was seeking an increase totalling $38,325, and to this, as to the other figures quoted, must be added about 10 per cent for fringe benefits and obligatory payments.

The outside staff was asking an increase of $58,115, the public health nurses $5,000, the firemen $56,900 and the policemen $57,500. The total of these and the extra 10 per cent, he said, was $237,000.

The mayor and Ald. M. H. Mooney both made public references to the wage situation yesterday.

The mayor said in an address to the Rotary Club that the city had the prospect of $200,000 in increased revenue this year, which would be fine but for the prospect of the wage bill rising.

Ald. Mooney suggested that a referendum be held on whether or not civic wage requests should be granted.

City Clamps Down

Trading Stamps Dealing Outlawed

City council put its weight behind the city police commission yesterday in a move to bar the introduction of trading stamps into Victoria.

Mayor Percy Scurrah told a special meeting of council that the police commission had instructed the police chief to prosecute under the Criminal Code anyone dealing in trading stamps in the city.

At his suggestion council passed a resolution similar to one passed last November in Vancouver instructing the licence inspector not to issue a licence to any firm employing the principle of trading stamps in any form without prior reference to council, and that federal and provincial legislators be advised and their support sought in obtaining legislation to make such practices illegal in Canada.

Actually, City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady told council, the existing Criminal Code provisions against trading stamps are very broad. "There may be loopholes but I am not aware of them."

But Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, who moved the resolution, said it was meant to be a deterrent "to stop anyone who may be thinking of coming to Victoria and using stamps."

Wages Spearpoint Demands by Police

Esquimalt police will launch municipal wage negotiations with a request for a 15 per cent, across-the-board pay hike.

Demands were submitted by the police [illegible] to the [illegible] yesterday.

They included requests for a group insurance plan covering life and disability, two more statutory holidays (Easter Monday, Queen's birthday) bringing the annual number of holidays to 11, and calling of police business discussions every six months.

The 12-member force will also ask for a 4½ per cent increase in municipal superannuation, employees paying 2½ per cent and employers 2 per cent of the raise.

A CBC mobile unit headed by producer [illegible] Herbert, a former Victorian, would be brought to Vancouver Island for the first [illegible] the legislature were [illegible]. Almanac would be telecast from the studios of CHEK-TV.

Strathcona

$43,500 Won In Cafe Lawsuit

Damages totalling $43,500—believed to be one of the largest sums ever awarded in a lawsuit in Victoria—were ordered paid to the former co-proprietors of the Strathcona Hotel Cafe in a reserved judgment handed down yesterday by Mr. Justice Norman Whittaker of the Supreme Court.

The decision, resulting from trial held late last spring, awarded plaintiffs Mrs. Thelma Simmonds [illegible] $[illegible],000 and [illegible] [illegible] same time had been deducted.

Defendant is Barney Olson, owner of the Strathcona Hotel in which the cafe is located. It is very likely the court decision will be appealed, his lawyer [illegible] plaintiffs on the right of renewal of the cafe lease. Plaintiffs were represented by Marsh Gordon, defendant by George Gregory.

City Car Distributors To Close Next Week

The British Automobile Centre on Yates Street, Victoria, is to close down next week. John Barnes, head of the company, said the step was being taken because the operation could not be conducted profitably.

British Automobile Centre held the Victoria district franchise for the Morris, M-G, Wolseley division of the British Motor Corporation.

A staff of 17, including five mechanics, will lose their jobs.

'Quit And Fight'

A [illegible] guest house operator Ivan W. Hanchard last night challenged any of the city aldermen but Donald Smith to resign over the trades licence issue and fight it out at the polls.

Mr. Hanchard, 1091 Joan Crescent, said he would be only too glad to stand as a candidate for alderman and let the citizens decide.

"This is an honest challenge and a clear [illegible]," he said.

He demanded also that Mayor Percy Scurrah resign.

Mr. Hanchard said he was issuing his challenge because of the "hostile opposition" of Mayor Scurrah which was "tacitly supported" by the other aldermen against Ald. Smith's fight for a revision of the city's trades licence and business tax systems.

'It's Not What You Know . . . . . . It's Who You Know'

'Oh, Percy, We Can Do More than That'

Contacts, Mayor Percy Scurrah told the Rotary Club yesterday, are one of the most valuable things we have in the business world.

"So often it is said that it's not what you know that's important, but who you know."

And he proceeded to give the club an illustration of how important it is to get to know people.

The federal government, the mayor said, had given Victoria no hope of assistance in building the Point Ellice Bridge. But when he went to Ottawa as a member of the executive of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities he [illegible] a friend in the board of transport [illegible] what could be done to get assistance from the Canadian National Railways since the bridge crosses the CNR tracks.

"He said, 'Oh, Percy, we'll do better than that for you,'" the mayor said, and told him about a board fund for building bridges over crossings.

The outcome was, Mayor Scurrah said, that the board would pay 30 per cent of the cost of the western end of the bridge.

"That was something we here had known nothing about."

If he hadn't gone east, Victoria still would not have known, "and we wouldn't have got that assistance amounting to some $90,000."

Mostly, the mayor's speech was along the same lines as his inaugural address to council but there were one or two surprises.

He disclosed that "we have requested the Capital Improvement District Commission to pay for the extension of Superior to Heywood" to give a new outlet for persons going from the legislative buildings to their homes and to relieve congestion downtown.

Talking of the beautification program partly completed along Dallas and on Clover Point, he said that the "suggestion has been made to me that we put a first-class seafood restaurant down there."

He said that he had tried to convince federal Finance Minister Walter Harris that there should be a rebate of the 10 per cent federal tax on the steelwork of the new Point Ellice Bridge.

"The argument is still not settled," he said, "but I have a sneaking suspicion that what he is going to do is take the 10 per cent sales tax off all bridges in Canada."

Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Magrath, 2634 Dufferin Avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Gaylene Elizabeth, to Constable Ronald Jack Woolger, RCMP, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Woolger, Aneroid, Sask. The wedding will take place Friday, Feb. 15, at 8 p.m. in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.—(Photos by Goertz Studios.)

Nightgowns Double For Evening Wear

By MARIAN RAHL

It isn't news that a nightgown has doubled as an evening gown in emergencies but it is news that many nightgowns this season are deliberately keyed to the look in evening fashions. (A fashion editor reports that recently when separated from part of her luggage on a trip she wore two nightgowns, one over the other, to a gala occasion!)

Floating chiffons, Empire bandings under the bosom and a lessening of fussy detailing gives such gowns their glamorous airs. A sprinkling of rhinestones helps, too. Subtle draping renders a fluid line to many and necklines flatter in V and [illegible] outlines. A long lean look is top fashion in sleepwear with some of the gowns slashed at sides or the back. The ex[illegible] fine denier overskirt combines with heavier, more opaque weights for some ethereal effects. As to regular wearing apparel, length makes an impression to gowns and peignoirs. Ballet length sets are cropped at mid-calf in a bow to longer hemlines.

Peignoirs follow the formality of nightdresses in many instances and the romantic cape softness seen in new coat styles adds its feminine treatment to shoulders. Of course, many are frankly boudoir in feeling as are gowns with ribbon run and lace trimmings.

Colors are another reason some of the holiday gowns you will find available for gift giving have sophisticated airs. In addition to the lovely blues from aquamarine to sapphire and other pastels are smart candlelight, beige and a brown haze. Red is seen in more than one shade these days as it becomes a staple in many lingerie wardrobes.

New Members Join Auxiliary

At a meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion, held last Tuesday, the following new members were initiated: Mrs. B. E. Lake, Mrs. L. Hovind, Mrs. M. Johnson and Mrs. E. Mills.

Letters of thanks were read from 19 shut-in branch members who received fruit baskets in the holiday season delivered by the president Mrs. I. Horrod and Mrs. B. Dawes.

It was reported by Mrs. H. Jarvis that 295 veterans were visited by her committee on Legion Day.

Arrangements were made for a Valentine Tea to be held on Feb. 14 in the Legion Hall, 1616 Blanshard Street.

SUNDAY SOUP BREAK

The convivial custom of "dropping by" after church is on the increase and a more commendable way of socializing is hard to imagine. Hot buttered soup makes an ideal beverage to serve to Sunday visitors. It quickly warms them when they come in from inclement weather and serves as a first course for midday dinner as well. Offer a "drinking" soup such as tomato consomme or beef broth, with a pat of butter afloat in each cup or mug. And pass toast strips, pretzels or cheese sticks as a crunchy texture contrast.

Festival Nets $800

The Festival of Christmas Decorations has shown a net profit of well over $800, it was reported at the January meeting of the Auxiliary to the Family and Children's Welfare Service at Spencer-house.

Mrs. W. A. Atherton and Mrs. J. R. Dillabough gave this report, adding that money was still coming in.

At the meeting, Mrs. G. Walters of the Zi Beta Chapter presented the Auxiliary with a cheque for $150, this money to be used at the Group Foster Home.

A nominating committee has been appointed which consists of Mrs. W. A. Atherton, Mrs. E. McKenzie and Mrs. W. L. Revitt.

Plans are being made for a Spring Ridotto.

A LOVELIER YOU

By Mary Sue Miller

BREATH OF LOVELINESS. Performed daily, the following exercise increases energy and relieves tension. Too, it puts roses in your cheeks, sparkle in your eyes and a lilt in your voice. How can one routine do all that? Simply by supplying your system with extra oxygen—the breath of good health and looks.

To perform, open a window, sit nearby on floor tailor-fashion and pull up tall. Inhale deeply for a slow count of three. Exhale for six slow counts, directing breath against back of throat. Repeat three to five minutes. Always work perfect rhythm: a quiet inhalation, a noisy exhalation.

What's Cooking!

By Frances Thompson

Liver Is Rich in Iron

If you would like a good laugh this morning turn to our Trick of the Day at the end of this column. Scotland and I got together over the phone and became almost "giggly." She, Mrs. E. R., is married to a Scotsman though herself a Canadian and was wondering why I gave the address of a Seattle organization to which Christmas cards might be sent. Well, when Mrs. J. told me that office shot out our cards all over the world to "wherever there are children's missions" I decided to pass the [illegible] along. Apparently they make them up into picture stories (the Biblical ones, that is) and thereby use them for teaching the Christian faith to youngsters in foreign lands.

The butchers tell me there is no shortage of meat at the present time but they refuse to predict what might happen if the present railroad strike continues. So in the meantime how would you like to try the following recipe one day soon, or maybe today? Everybody knows that liver should be served at least once a week in some form or other but don't get in a rut. You don't necessarily have to pan-fry or broil it all the time. Will you try the following suggestion?

LIVER AND VEGETABLES

(Three or four servings)

One pound beef or pork liver, 2 tablespoons fat, 1 cup celery chopped stalks, 2 small onions, 6 small carrots, 2 to 3 sliced tomatoes; 1 cup any vegetable water, 2 tablespoons flour. Prepare celery, cut in pieces and put in bottom of greased baking dish. Sprinkle with salt. Cut liver in serving size pieces, place on top of celery and dot with fat. Chop onion finely and with diced carrots, tomatoes and vegetable water add to liver. Cover and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for about one hour. Remove liver and vegetables on to hot platter, thicken the remaining gravy with the flour and pour it over the works.

And don't forget, my dears, that liver, heart and kidney are rich in iron. They contain large amounts of Vitamin A and are high in Vitamin B content. And while pork liver is the least expensive it is possibly highest in food value.

* * *

Now here's a suggestion for those who do not eat meat on Fridays. It's for a good old fashioned fish chowder and from this basic recipe you can change it around to suit yourself. Any kind of white-fleshed fish may be used. It's a warming and comfortable meal on a chilly Friday evening.

FISH CHOWDER

(about four good servings)

One and a half pounds fish, 1½-inch cube of fat salt pork, 1 medium sized onion chopped, 3 cups diced potatoes; 2 cups boiling water, 1 quart scalded milk, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 4 to 6 soda crackers, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. After washing the fish bring it slowly to the boil and simmer covered till tender. This only takes about five to 10 minutes. Drain and reserve stock.

Remove skin and bones from fish. Saute the onions in the melted pork fat, add potatoes and boiling water. Cook fairly quickly [illegible] about five minutes. Then add fish and stock, bring to the boil again and simmer for 15 minutes. Add the milk and seasonings. If you have a little cream to spare this chowder would welcome it but it is not necessary. Heat thoroughly and [illegible] serving. This is a real warmer-upper on a chilly night.

TRICK OF THE DAY

Here comes the laugh! Says Mrs. F. R. of Saanich . . . "Don't send your Christmas cards to Seattle, as stated in your column of yesterday. Instead, rub off with bleach the names of the senders and return to others who do not know them and will not recognize the [illegible]." Well, the idea has its merits but I don't like it very much, do you?"

Peggy Shaw Sails Home In 73-Foot Schooner

By EILEEN LEAROYD

Who says romantic adventure is dead?

It was still alive yesterday at any rate, when we talked to a Victoria sailor just home after serving "before the mast" in the South Seas for over a year.

The sailor is beautiful, dark-haired Mrs. Peggy Shaw. She saw the Marquesas, the Kon Tiki island, and she sailed hundreds of miles in seas swept by soft trade winds and the perfumes of Polynesia.

What could be more romantic?

Mrs. Shaw returned to Victoria three weeks ago with her young daughter Robin, age seven, who accompanied her on the kind of adventure most people have only in imagination.

Peggy and Robin cruised down to Tahiti on a 50-foot ketch and came back on a 73-foot racing schooner which had taken part in the Los Angeles-Tahiti sailing classic.

During the year they lay over four months in Tahiti they met the natives on Raroia, the island made famous when the Kon Tiki expedition landed there after crossing from South America. They nearly collided with a whale, they survived a tropic gale and Peggy Shaw took a trick on the wheel in regular watches.

Mrs. Shaw who is a registered nurse, and is now back at her job in St. Joseph's hospital, signed on the White Hart as crew with owners Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Reeves in December 1955. By Jan. 11 they had left San Diego [illegible] French Marquesas, then south-west to the Tuamotu group of coral atolls.

"Off Raroia," smiled sailor Shaw, "we had our only gale of the entire trip. It was short and violent, with hail raining down on us and the palm trees bent right over.

"It was also off Raroia that I nearly ran into an enormous whale. It was my turn at the wheel, and I was staring with fascination at one whale, and very nearly ran into another one just as big."

They visited another coral atoll in the same group and there the inhabitants told them they were the first yacht ever to anchor. Everyone had a lively time with the visitors and natives being equally intrigued.

Finally the White Hart made Tahiti and there the Shaws left the ketch to stay on the island four months. The Reeves sailed on to New Zealand.

Peggy Shaw was delighted with Tahiti.

"Tahitians are not lazy as people often believe, but they are very clever [illegible] people. In fact all the [illegible] are kind and generous, and very gay. They all sing and dance and love music. They keep busy with a citrus industry, and making copra, pearl diving and growing vanilla."

She did not take a job on Tahiti as "you have to be French for most jobs." She used part of the time on various yachts or with Tahitian families.

Mrs. Shaw had no trouble in finding a berth for the trip back here for when the big Los Angeles-Tahiti race was over, most of the crews of the luxury yachts flew home and therefore extra crew was very welcome.

Mrs. Shaw "signed on" the schooner Viveka and on this trip she added cooking to her duties at the wheel. It took three months to make the return journey. They called again at the Marquesas, the coral atolls and at Honolulu, running under sail the whole time, except to use an auxiliary engine for leaving and entering harbor.

All the time she was away, Peggy Shaw tutored her daughter in school work and Robin has now entered grade 2 at Macaulay school.

Mrs. Shaw belongs to the Royal Victoria Yacht Club and first learned to sail in her own Snipe and Star.

Peggy and Robin live at 1153 Munro Street.

Especially Rhodesia!

To Catch a Man, Look to British Commonwealth

LONDON — Girls looking for husbands are advised to search no farther. The British Commonwealth is the place for them.

Australia, New Zealand, Rhodesia and other Commonwealth countries, all pushing major programs to attract immigrants, are suffering from a severe shortage of single women between the ages 18-35. The situation, officials say, is little short of desperate.

For example, the rich, booming African territory of Rhodesia has immediate need for no less than 10,000 marriageable women. According to Australian officials, one man in seven in that huge country is looking for a wife but can't find one.

English girls are being encouraged to try their luck by Commonwealth officials supervising the recruiting of immigrants here. But the government of New Zealand, for instance, is also energetically canvassing Europe for unattached female settlers, particularly Germany and Austria where there has been a severe shortage of men since Second World War.

"We're a frontier country in many respects," explained a Rhodesia official, "and our problem is much the same as that which confronted the American West a few generations ago. A lot of young men have come out to make their fortunes but there aren't any women for them to marry unless they return to England to find one, just as Americans used to go back East."

There are plenty of jobs for women who decide to emigrate and, in most cases, the governments concerned agree to pay their passage. Very few single women who make the move appear to regret it later.

"About 10 per cent of our post-war immigrants have returned to their former homes for one reason or another," said an Australian official. "But among single women, the number is less than one per cent. I suppose they're ones who didn't get married."

THE PATIO SKIRT

The charming fashion of a long skirt, in casual cotton, to wear for summer entertaining has really caught on. Floor and ankle-length skirts, usually in gay printed cottons, are shown for late-day wear on that winter vacation. One designer uses striped cotton chiffon to make a graceful flowing skirt and it's teamed with a matching chiffon camisole top, and cotton shorts and shirt in the same stripe.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY Mrs. Dan Gerber (MOTHER OF 5)

A column-reading mother writes: "I was surprised to find that I learned more about what was best for baby through the little mistakes I made. After all, I didn't really know she would prefer being held, bathed or fed another way until I did it the wrong way." Reassuring to know that new mother mistakes often lead to better baby care.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	1 ♡	1 ♠	Pass
3 N.T.	All Pass

To borrow a well known literary style, a free bid is a free bid is a free bid. The fact that the opponents have a part score doesn't affect this; presumably your partner is as well aware of this as you are and the likelihood that he will sell too cheaply is slim. North's free bid of one spade was rather on the bold side, especially in view of his barren 4-3-3-3 distribution. After the free bid, South's rebid of three no-trump was entirely warranted even though he held only a single stopper in hearts.

West opened the king of hearts. [illegible] a couple of [illegible] ning the heart ace how do you plan your play?"

You have five tricks in your hand. The odds are against your establishing a fourth round winner in either of your suits without letting West get the lead, and the moment he wins a trick he can run enough heart tricks to defeat you. So you pretty much have to win four spade tricks to bring home the game.

The play best calculated to do this is the lead of the nine of spades. When it holds the trick you can play the ten and overtake with a jack. After that dummy is in to make two more spade tricks.

The habit play of the highest of touching cards will, in this case, defeat you. West would cover with the queen if you led the spade 10. Your nine would then be too high but [illegible] came back [illegible] hard [illegible] would be unable to re[illegible] to dummy [illegible] the two remaining winners in the suit. That is why it is so necessary for you to conceal from West, on the first lead, the fact that you hold the ten-spot and intend to take a first round finesse.

WINNING POINTS

Declarer's aim should be always to make his play as misleading as possible; a defender, on the other hand, must take pains not to mislead his partner.

Little Girl Faces Darkness

Blind Mother's 'Eyes' Under Knife Herself

VANCOUVER (BUP) Surgeons in Vancouver General Hospital are fighting to save the eyesight of a five-year old Yukon girl who served as the "eyes" of her blind mother.

Capt. M. C. Robinson of the Canadian National Institute of the Blind said the child suffered "severe damage" to one eye when struck by a tinsel-paper pellet fired from a playmate's slingshot at a New Year's Eve party.

There is danger of infection transferring from the damaged eye to the other and leaving her totally blind.

Patricia's mother has been totally blind for several years and the child has acted as a guide for her mother.

The CNIB will pay the cost of the flight and the Yukon government will pay the medical expenses.

GLASGOW (Reuters) — So many Scots want to go to Canada that the migration office here had to close its doors on hundreds of applicants.

Immigrants Welshing On Fares

MONTREAL (BUP) — Private detective agencies have been hired to search for some 1,000 European immigrants who have disappeared without repaying money advanced them for their passage to Canada.

A spokesman for immigrant aid societies said "there is no question of looking for criminals," even though persons owing the money have failed to keep in touch with the agencies.

The spokesman said the case of a family with a 15-letter name was an example of how difficult it was to find the immigrants whose failure to repay loans has cut heavily into the agencies' working capital. He said a tracer showed that after seven moves in Canada, the family's name had dwindled to seven letters. The family still is being sought.

'Pillars of the Sky'

Off-Beat Western at Last

By BRUCE LOWTHER

At last, Hollywood has made a western in which the good guys are not rescued by the U.S. Cavalry in the last reel.

In the case of "Pillars of the Sky," which opened at the [illegible] heroine are saved by religion—it comes to the Indians and to number one hero Jeff Chandler.

This different twist and, earlier, a bang-up battle between soldiers and Indians, make this film worth seeing.

CHRISTIANIZING

Back in 1868, in the Oregon country, Sgt. Jeff Chandler and missionary Ward Bond were Christianizing the Indians, although Chandler kept nipping at canteens full of moonshine.

Then came a troop of cavalry to build a road through the reservation. The Indians forgot God and put on grease, but when most everybody was killed, including the missionary in a last-minute bid for peace, the Indians took up the Bible again and Chandler took over the pulpit.

Dorothy Malone, a real beauty, married to another soldier, loves Chandler, but keeps to the code by going back to hubby.

Bond, Chandler and especially Lee Marvin as an Irish sergeant turn in adequate performances—but the stars, as always in action films, are the scenery and the battles.

PICTURE PREVIEW: Royal opens Gary Cooper's "Friendly Persuasion" next week . . . Capitol brings in "Beyond a Reasonable Doubt," with Joan Fontaine, Monday . . . Odeon returns "Rebecca," also with Miss Fontaine, Jan. 21.

City to Study Advisability Of More Polls

City council finance committee will study the advisability of having multiple polling stations in Victoria's civic elections and of extending the voting hours.

The decision to embark on the new study was reached after Ald. J. Donald Smith said that for many years there had been justified complaints about only one polling station being provided.

He called for study, too, of making the voting hours 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. instead of 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

If any TViewers doubt the accuracy of program ratings, here's another set of figures to prove that CBS is the most popular network.

In 1956, CBS had gross revenue of more than $200,000,000 (for the first time), while NBC chalked up about $173,000,000 and ABC had a pretty poor [illegible]

And which network chalked up the biggest percentage increase? ABC by 64 per cent. Happily, since that means more competition and better programs.

Unemployment

Snow Hampers Island Areas

Snow has caused disruption of some services and unemployment in the woods at Campbell River and the Alberni [illegible] on the Campbell River area [illegible] 24 hours. Port Alberni had seven inches, Duncan four and [illegible] six. But rain [illegible] washed most of it away.

Telephone communications were disrupted at Campbell River and B.C. Airlines battled a snowstorm to bring a sick man, A. Marshall, from Read Island to Lourdes Hospital.

In the Albernis chains were needed to drive over the mountain and were recommended for all vehicles. Several minor accidents were reported and power service was interrupted in some areas.

EXTREME CHANGE

Temperature on the North African deserts may range from 120 degrees in the afternoon to below freezing at night.

Farcical Repeat

PARKSVILLE — Plans have been completed for a repeat performance of the farce, "See How They Run," to be presented at Qualicum Beach Community Hall Jan. 15 at 8.15 p.m.

The three-act play is directed by Mrs. Hazel Ritchie of the Masque Dramatic Society of Port Alberni assisted by Mrs. Gretta Haworth of Parksville.

Eaton's Open Late

DUNCAN — Friday night shopping will become a regular event in Duncan with the announcement that the T. Eaton Co. will adopt Friday night opening as a Dominion-wide policy to meet competition.

But, the policy will not apply to the Victoria store, [illegible] local legislation compels stores to close in the evenings.

'Reds Difficult To Figure Out'

NANAIMO — "It is difficult to fathom Communist objectives," UBC Professor Dr. Cyril Beyner told a Nanaimo audience Wednesday. "But it seems safe to assume the object of the Communist Party, like that of any other political party, is to stay in power," he said.

He considered Russia's views on capitalism and their economic theories, are still largely "19th century."

Sidney Seeks Solution To Bottleneck of Cars

SIDNEY — The village commission will seek a meeting with Washington State Ferries in an effort to solve the problem of cars, waiting for ferries, parking down the centre of Beacon Avenue.

Sometimes there are as many as 90 cars parked there and the commission agreed [illegible] is a [illegible] situation.

Commissioner Mrs. Vivian Cowan pointed out that merchants and businessmen on Beacon Avenue oppose any change because they feel there would be a serious drop in business if tourists were forced to park on side roads.

The other commissioners were doubtful if the business drop would be great. Chairman Dr. [illegible] H. Hemmings said that even if a small business loss did [illegible] for the safety [illegible].
